A Message from the Editor

They said we were doomed. The big-shot publishing honchos with their all-wool suits and their Atlantic City tans and their carefully-brushed teeth -- they all said we were crazy. No ads? Heresy! No pay for contributors? Sacrilege! Radio-active paper? Madness!

But you proved them wrong. You, the readers... some 260,000 of you. And we're not about to let you down.

So sit back, take your shoes off, loosen your pants, and get ready for the best d---ed Army Man since #1!

Joe and Moe in "FOOD FEUD"

JOE: Sorry Moe I was way out of line with that Tourette's Syndrome remark. Can I buy you lunch.

MOE: Sure why not.

JOE: How about Chinese.

MOE: Fuck you.

JOE: Sorry I forgot you hate Chinese how about Mexican.

MOE: That would be fine Joe.

(LONG PAUSE)

Fuck you.

In Elizabethan England, it was considered a scandal if a well-bred woman married a carp, chub, or sucker. In those days, all three were scorned as "trash fish."

DEEP THOUGHTS

by Jack Handey

3

What is it that makes a complete stranger dive into an icy river to try to save a solid-gold baby? Maybe we'll never know.

If I ever opened a trampoline store, I don't think I'd call it Trampo-Land, because you might think it was a store for tramps, which is not the impression we are trying to convey with our store.

On the other hand, we would not prohibit tramps from browsing, or testing the trampolines, unless a tramp's gyrations seemed to be getting out of control.

Instead of trying to build newer and bigger weapons of destruction, mankind should be thinking about getting more use out of the weapons we already have.

*

One of the bad things about moving to another planet would be, what if they had a weird, creepy-looking Santa Claus there with weird tubes coming out of his head and stuff?

*

If you ever take a course on sharks, don't think just because they haven't gotten to the hammerhead yet they're going to skip it. No, it's coming up, my friend, you can be sure of that.

In weightlifting, I don't think sudden, uncontrolled urination should automatically disqualify you.

At first I thought it would be a bad thing if you landed in the desert in your parachute, and the parachute stayed puffed-up and started dragging you all over the place. But what might happen is, when you finally stop, hey, my pockets are full of arrowheads! Thanks!

Probably the earliest flyswatters were nothing more than some sort of striking surface attached to the end of a long stick.

*

I would like to point out that when I said earlier that a good way to get someone's attention is to scrape a rake across their front window, I didn't mean one of those stiff metal rakes. I meant one of those flimsier rakes with the more bendy kind of metal.

*

To me, one of the best examples of a blending of the old and the new would just be a very old blending machine (with a new motor).

*

If you ever discover that what you're seeing is a play within a play, just slow down, take a deep breath, and hold on for the ride of your life.

*

I wish I had a dollar for every time I spent a dollar, because then, yahoo!, I'd have all my money back.

*

If you saw two guys named Hambone and Flippy, which one would you think liked dolphins the most? I'd say Flippy, wouldn't you? You'd be wrong though. It's Hambone.

BRIDE: (QUIETLY, TEARFUL) Ladies and gentlemen...
I'm afraid there won't be a wedding after all. Because, you see... my fiance has... has

HECKLER FROM BACK PEW: Louder!

BRIDE: (LOUDER, ALMOST HYSTERICAL) My fiance has died!

ANOTHER HECKLER: Funnier!

PATIENT: I had a dream last night that my waffle iron suddenly spat out its waffle and stabbed my husband to death.

PSYCHIATRIST: Have you called the police?

PATIENT: (PAUSE) No. It didn't really happen. It was a dream.

PSYCHIATRIST: I see. Please continue.

PATIENT: Well... then... (QUICKLY) And this didn't really happen either...

PSYCHIATRIST: I understand.

PATIENT: I dreamed that I was doing somersaults down the freeway, and my head blew out, and I lost control...

PSYCHIATRIST: (INTERRUPTING) And you say this didn't happen?

PATIENT: No.

PSYCHIATRIST: (PAUSE) Then I don't get it.

PATIENT: It was a dream.

PSYCHIATRIST: I understand. Please continue.

The Economy

Christmas sales for 1989 will be so low that we can already predict them now, Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady reported last week.

Sluggish sales on the day after Thanksgiving will kick off a lackluster shopping season, and on Christmas Eve only three last-minute shoppers will be spotted nationwide. In addition, a pine blight will kill off most of the nation's Christmas trees, and all the ornaments will break when a giant steps on them.

"It's the worst Christmas we'll ever have had," Brady sobbed. -

Later, I felt guilty for the lie, so I rented a theater and put on a play, with the garden gnomes prominently displayed. Like a jerk, I forgot to invite the lady from the nursery. But it all paid off, because my play just won a Pulitzer Prize. *

AN OPEN LETTER TO GARY HART

Dear Gary,

We keep hearing you talk about "new ideas." But when we examine these "new ideas" more closely, they don't seem to have much substance. I think Walter Mondale put it best when he asked you, "Where's the beef?" These "new ideas" of yours are all well and good, Gary, but where's the beef?

Then there's the question of trust. You have to earn people's trust if you expect them to vote for Gary Hartpence. That's right, I called you Hartpence. Why? Because that's your real name, Gary. You changed it many years ago, and we can prove it.

That brings us to the issue of character. You say you have the integrity and strong moral fiber Americans expect in a Commander in Chief. There's just one slight problem with this claim. If you're a man of such sterling character, how did you manage to get involved in a sordid sex scandal? The incident I'm referring to was an overnight boat trip to Bimini with a young Miami model. Her name? That's not important. The (CONT.)

An Amusing Anecdote

My wife and I rent a small cottage on the shimmering shores of Lake Superior every summer. The rustic little bungalow is made of rough-hewn logs chinked with mud, and the front door opens onto an unequalled vista of towering evergreens and azure water -- just the thing to settle the nerves of an addled contestant in the "rat race."

Last summer my wife and I were merrily preparing a hearty supper of fresh-caught trout and corn on the cob, when who should wander up but a little old man with a bulging knapsack strapped to his ancient back. He looked like a crusty forest trapper from the days of Lewis and Clark. Hailing us from a distance, he approached our modest lakeside cabin and extended his weathered hand in greeting. Bending forward under the weight of his burden, he whispered something in my ear.

It was an amusing anecdote! ♣

Those who can't...

important thing is the name of the boat: the Monkey Business. Is it starting to ring a bell, Gary? It should. You were there.

Right now you're aiming for '92. Fair enough. But I wouldn't get too cocky, my friend. You haven't won anything yet. All it would take is one more major scandal, and you could kiss the Oval Office goodbye.

So watch your step, Gary. You're still the best-looking candidate the Democrats have. Don't blow it.

- Q: My husband wants to relocate first base to the front yard. I told him an umpire, or at worst, a garbage man, could arrest him. Isn't that a policeman's job?
A: No, that is your responsibility.
- Q: How many cats are named after dogs?
A: Not as many.
- Q: Was there more than one Junior Samples?
A: Not until he died.
- Q: Are you related to the aloe vera plant?
A: Only by color.
- Q: Which one is Amos? Is it Andy?
A: They are both.
- Q: Our son's Barbie doll has been in a coma for fourteen years. We have kept her alive in an aquarium just in case. She has a terrible bad case of algae and some of her leg is broke off. Will she live?

Handy Hints

Sometimes when I am bored, I find something in the attic to put in the blender. Then I draw a map showing where I threw it away.

It's a clever way to get things done!

While I'm feeding the children's toys, I clean out the attic with a doorknob. Then, when you aren't looking, I change the aluminum foil on my favorite bed.

The possibilities are endless.

Here is a tip that I use on childhood days: I photocopy my daughter and her little family, and mark each one on the neck with an identification number and carry them in my purse.

They love it!

Whenever I get ready to need something that I don't want (sometimes twice a day), I have great difficulty remembering how much time is left.

This has proved to be very helpful to me.

After years of struggling with clothes, I started wearing a shower cap and clothespins. It's amazing how well this works.

THE TRUE STORY OF WHAT HAPPENED TO ME

I remember I was hammering on a fence in the west pasture when Papa approached. He was carrying a letter or something in his hand, and he looked worried.

I continued to hammer as he came toward me. "Son," he said, "why are you hammering on that fence? It already has plenty of nails in it."

"Oh, I'm not using nails, Papa," I replied. "I'm just hammering." With that, I returned to my hammering.

Papa asked me to stop hammering, as he had some news. I did stop hammering, but first I got a couple more hammers in, and this seemed to make Papa mad. "I said, stop hammering!" he yelled.

I think he felt bad for yelling at me, especially since it looked like he had bad news. "Look," he said, "you can hammer later, but first --"

Well, I didn't even wait to hear the rest. As soon as I heard "You can hammer," that's what I started doing. Hammering away, happy as an old hammer dog.

Papa tried to physically stop me from hammering by inserting a small log of some sort between my hammer and the fence. But I just kept on hammering, 'cause that's the way I am when I get that hammer going. Then, he just grabbed my arm and made me stop.

"I'm afraid I have some news for you," he said.

I swear, what I did next was not hammering. I was just letting the hammer swing lazily at arm's length, and maybe it tapped the fence once or twice, but that's all. That apparently didn't make any difference whatsoever to Papa, because he just grabbed my hammer out of my hand and flung it across the field.

When I saw my hammer flying helplessly through the air like that, I just couldn't take it. I burst out crying, I admit it. And I ran to the house, as fast as my legs could take me.

"Son, come back!" yelled Papa. "What about your hammer?!"

But I could not have cared less about hammering at that point. I ran into the house and flung myself onto my bed, pounding the bed with my fists. I pounded and pounded, until finally, behind me, I heard a voice. "As long as you're pounding, why not use this?" I turned, and it was Papa, holding a brand-new solid-gold hammer.

I quickly wiped the tears from my eyes and ran to Papa's outstretched arms. But suddenly, Papa jumped out of the way, and I went sailing through the second-story window behind him.

Whenever I hear about a kid getting in trouble with drugs, I like to tell him this story.

My home town was nice, but the people there were so stupid. They thought we were German! About once a week a bunch of them would march up to our house and paint a swastika on our garage. My father would go out and explain, "No, no. We are from Israel! We are Jews! JEWS!" Sometimes he'd hold up our Torah, to make them understand. But the following week, there'd be another swastika. ▲
